2.1 Past events – narrative forms

GR2.1))

- 1 Mary Kingsley decided to travel to Africa, a place she had always dreamt of visiting.
- 2 She had two missions to complete while she was travelling the continent.
- 3 Her father's friends had warned her of the dangers, but she ignored them.
- 4 She encountered animals and sights she hadn't seen before.

A narrative is a description of a past event. The main tenses we generally use in a narrative are the past simple, the past continuous and the past perfect.

- We use the past simple to describe the main events of the story.
 I looked out of the window and saw the Taj Mahal for the first time.
- We use the past continuous to talk about a) background actions or situations that were in progress at the time of the main events or b) two actions in progress at the same time.

I was waiting for them to arrive when I heard the news. We were drinking coffee and Haruki was doing some shopping.

 We use the past perfect to show that a past action or situation took place a) before one of the main events or b) before the story began.

We'd been driving all day and were totally exhausted. The hotel was not as nice as we had expected.

Note that we often use time words such as when, while, before, after, as soon as and by the time to connect events using the different narrative tenses.

They were both working in Paris when they first met. By the time we arrived, we had got lost several times.

2.2 Past perfect forms

GR2.2))

- 1 I hadn't set the alarm, so I got to work late.
- 2 By the time Nicola called, Anna had left for the station.
- 3 Sara hadn't been working there long when she was promoted.
- 4 They'd been painting the room for nearly an hour when they realized they'd been using the wrong colour.

Form

We form the past perfect simple with had + past participle.

The play had started when he got to the theatre. They hadn't met before.

We form the past perfect continuous with had + been + -ing.

It had been raining for hours.

I hadn't been feeling well for a few days.

In speaking and in informal writing, we often contract had to 'd, especially after subject pronouns.

We'd met a few times before.

It'd been raining for days.

Use

We use the past perfect to show that something happened before something else in the past.

 We use the past perfect simple to talk about actions that were completed before the moment we are talking about.

Francis had left when we arrived.

Had the meeting started by the time you got there?

 We use the past perfect continuous to talk about actions that continued for a period of time or were repeated over a period of time. This action may or may not have continued up to the moment we are talking about it.

I'd been living in Italy for three years when we first met. When I woke up, I saw that it had been raining.

 We usually use the past perfect simple and not the past perfect continuous when we are talking about states rather than actions, with verbs like be, have, know.

We'd known each other for about five years before we became friends.

Note that we usually use the past simple to refer to the more recent action.

By the time we got to the station, the train had already left. Also, we often use already with the past perfect to emphasize that the action happened earlier. We also often use just to show that the action happened a very short time before. The bank had already closed by the time we got there.

Samir had just left when we arrived.

3 Complete the story of the Bermuda Triangle with the past perfect simple or past perfect continuous form of the verbs in brackets.

very long - only about ten minutes.

In December 1945	, five military planes
were on a training	flight after they 1
(take off) from an	airbase in Florida in the USA. The planes
2	(fly) for about an hour and they
3	(fly) about 300 miles when without warning, the navig	ational instruments on all the planes, which
4	(work) perfectly up to that point,
suddenly stopped	working. Radio contact was then lost.
None of the plane:	s or crew was ever seen again. The official explanation	n is that before they vanished, the planes
5	(fly) into an area of unusual
magnetic activity.	It is believed that this 6
(cause) their comp	basses and other equipment to malfunction.
The planes were fl	ying over the Atlantic Ocean near
Bermuda and the	story of the Bermuda Triangle was born.
By the mid-1970s,	sixteen more planes 7
(mysteriously/disa	ppear) in the same area. And it appears that in almost all o	ases, the navigational equipment
8	(stop) working just before the planes disappeare	d.
